

RH Specialist Insurance unlocks the puzzle of home breakdown cover

Your Alvis has been idle for longer than usual and you're getting ready for your first trip of the year. You're in the garage, turning your car's ignition key. There's the familiar whirr of the starter, followed by – nothing.

Failure to proceed is thankfully quite rare in Alvis circles. But when you're ready to go on a long-anticipated drive, it can ruin your day, or even your year – especially when you find that your classic policy doesn't cover you for home breakdowns – and many don't.

For most classic policies, breakdown cover only comes into effect when the vehicle is at least a mile away from home. Pushing a 4.3 Litre a mile up the road to get around that caveat might be an option for a (very!) fit policyholder, but it's not really a practical solution.

That's why RH covers your vehicle even when it has inconveniently decided to fail to proceed whilst at home.

According to Head of RH, Emma Airey "more often than not, non-starts at home are down to insufficient 'kick' from the battery, which is a straightforward fix even for non-mechanically minded owners.

But sometimes the fix isn't that simple. And that can be a problem when most classic policies only qualify a vehicle for breakdown assistance if it's at least a mile away from the owner's house.

Many classic owners pay out separately for traditional breakdown cover simply because it covers them for a breakdown at home. That can be a substantial extra outlay. RH does away with the need to waste money on separate breakdown insurance".

All RH clients are entitled to benefit from this complimentary cover.
